The Meaning Of Freedom

Only Fully Appreciated By Those Who Have Known Slavery

Only those who live in a land where freedom does not exist and in a land where freedom reigns can appreciate in the full the meaning of freedom. We are today fighting for freedom, the freedom which is essential to the peace. But not only for this, but for the exercise of freedom by those who are in the thrall of a country which knows not the great name of freedom.

There has been granted the confession of a German, once an inmate of a German concentration camp, he today enjoying the freedom of liberty to be found on British soil. He makes the strange confession that he glories in this war and chaos that he can take no part in it, for he as a helpless cripple. He fought for his Fatherland in the last war. Today he says he sits staring at his own Fatherland, for he has suffered tortures, the depth of which, he writes, no man can probe, unless indeed he has known the horrors of a concentration camp.

Here is the poignant confession of a German who once fought for his Fatherland. I find today's greatest comfort in praying for the deliverance of those who are still suffering what I have suffered, praying for the success of the Allied cause, for the saving of my country from an intolerable tyranny.

There is not a doubt that feels a German who has not been imbued with the spirit of Nazism may as the German who has accepted the true value and life. He speaks of men in the concentration camp trying to get up to a Sunday school, a command by Sturm Troopers led by a volunteer, who has been taken for the approval of wolves they broke and the content were, however, caught and one by one they were strung up and hanged. Later on, his body was brought in. "I have tried to tell the story," says this German, "without using the language of exaggeration. Do you wonder that I long to be once again in the front of the fighting line, but this time on the side of the Country of the Free?"—Leitgeber, Hamburg.

Yield Was Greater

More Wheat Obtained From Fencer Sheds During Last Year

A recent production in Canada for 1935 is estimated at 13,615,000 bushels compared with 12,530,000 bushels in 1934. Although the number of acres sown was two per cent less in 1935, the yield per acre was one-fifth of a per cent greater, bringing total production for the 1935 year to 13,615,000 bushels. Average yields were reported in all provinces except Nova Scotia.

It was my doctor who explained to me that common constipation is due to a lack of intestinal bulk. Kellogg's Bran supplies this needed bulk and also the intestinal tonic vitamin B. If you suffer, as I did, from this common type of constipation, you'll find that this daily "Ounce of Prevention" is a lot pleasanter and more effective than dosing yourself with harsh cathartics. Just eat it regularly, either as a cereal or in delicious muffins, and drink plenty of water. "All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in London, Canada, and sold in two convenient sized packages by all grocers.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Does Not Prove Anything

Penman Who Was Wary Would Be Wary Again

The Bradford Express says some years ago a English newspaper conducted, through its columns, an interesting and obviously popular controversy. Somebody started it by asserting that the average person of today were less dignified compared to the industrial giants of yesterday. Nobody was of course, but we recall that among other things the pre-ventor presented by way of proof of their contention, an imposing series of photographs of top-notchers of their choice. The striking thing about these was the number of hush babies in whiskery evidence. There were, for instance, Charles Darwin, Charles Dickens, Lord Salisbury, and many others.

This array may have led some readers to make some connection between beards and brains. Anybody it resulted in a supplementary argument on that particular phase of the subject. Thus, Mansfield, of all people, came into the picture, quite coincidentally by being called a "beard."

The other day, the question of "beard or not to beard" was raised again in the United States, with devastating effect, pointed out that the most distinguished beards on this continent were some found—on the Hollywood extras!

To such low degree has the once great facial adornment fallen in our age of course, is that, what woman's failure to patronize the barber is reported to have accounted for his strength, renders on the chin and neck, not necessarily unlike the cranial cavity. Fashions in the former come and go, but in the case of the latter you either have it or you don't—no ifs, no ands.

Method Is The Same

Naval Soldiers Are Now Using Rifles

As Bomb Targets

A favorite trick of the German during the Great War was to erect a line of dummy targets in the shape of a ruined house and anyone who hit it would consider that he had won. To-day the Germans are using "Bible Bibles" as dummy targets. The Germans are using "Bible Bibles" as dummy targets. The Germans are using "Bible Bibles" as dummy targets.

Old automobiles are operated with great care, but new machines are the slower pace at which they travel, says a lecturer at the University of Toronto. But slow and fast cars on the same highway get into one another's hair.

A fire in the "Canada, twinkle, little star," has been deposited in the British Museum for wartime use. The museum book was published in 1904 by Jane and Ann Taylor, with several other rhymes.
